Date: 17th September 2022

Venue: IPS Campus

Introduction:

A Tree plantation Programmed was organized by ASM's IPS to give awareness of commendable tree plantation initiative by all women of ASM IPS.

As Reforestation can combat climate change and support gender equality.

As the world works to address climate change, gender equality and closing the gender gap. And as a reforestation nonprofit that empowers women through many of our projects around the world, we have a unique perspective on the subject. From creating sustainable income to improving the standing of women in their communities, we have seen again and again how planting trees and empowering women naturally converges.

Although it may not seem obvious at first, the connection between healthy forests and women is a deeply rooted one. Trees provide a foundation for life to flourish almost everywhere they grow. They are nature's nurturers, creating and protecting habitat by absorbing and slowly releasing water into the air, cooling and shading their immediate surroundings, shielding communities from powerful winds and storm surges, growing nutritious food for people and wildlife, and so much more.

In the same way, women provide a foundation for their families and communities with their innate ability to nurture, hold space, protect, heal, teach and build. Women are naturally inclined toward growing community, and this makes them great leaders, teachers, healers and more. And the science shows that this special care extends to the natural world.

Objective: The objective of the program was to initiate Tree plantation by Women to support gender equality.
